B.G. Police launch "Hotspot Campaign"

By Brenda Bunting
Editor

You know who burglarized your neighbor's house, but you don't want to get involved. You see drugs being sold on the street corner, but you don't know the drug dealer's name, just what he looks like.

The Belle Glade Police wants citizens to help them solve crimes such as these, and they're trying to make it easier to citizens to help without getting involved.

A new "Hotspot Campaign" has been launched by the police department. The idea, says Police Chief Michael Miller, is not new, but one that has worked in other areas.

Postage paid cards have been left out at various locations around the city, including churches, laundry mats, high traffic areas.

Citizens can report illegal activity without giving their name and drop the card in the mail.

"With these cards we allow citizens to help us curtail criminal activity without them getting directly involved," said Chief Miller.

Officers will also be passing the cards out in the city as they make routine stops.

By Paula Swaford, R.N.

For many parts of the country, autumn is just around the corner. "Sweater weather" will be here shortly in the northern states, but down here, we just keep on "swatting" with heat wave after heat wave. During these hot months, a little known disease rears its ugly head. It is called Lyme Disease, but it has nothing to do with limes. It was named for the place where the disease was originally described: Lyme, Connecticut. This condition is a progressively debilitating one which affects many body systems and occurs in several stages. It is caused by the bite of an infected Ixodid tick, which includes the deer tick and black-legged tick. The bite from one of these transmits a spirochete-type organism called Borrelia burgdorferi. A specific blood test known as the Gundersen Lyme test can readily identify this organism in human blood.

There are three identified stages of this recurrent inflammatory disorder. Stage 1 occurs from 1 to 32 days after infection by the tick bite. If the person isn't treated during this stage, symptoms will disappear but may recur. The treatment includes a 3-4 week course of oral antibiotics, usually penicillin or tetracycline. Symptoms can include a rash, particularly on the lower portion of the body and legs characterized by a "bull's-eye" configuration (red-ringed border with a pale center), fatigue, malaise (discomfort or uneasiness), headache, a stiff neck that can last several weeks, sore throat, a fever, and myalgia (back and neck pain).

In stage 2, which commonly occurs 2 to 9 months after the bite, treatment is usually a 3-4 week course of intravenous

(IV)-antibiotics, normally administered by a home health nurse. During this time severe headaches, photophobia (sensitivity to light), memory lapses, possible facial paralysis, eye infections and mild congestive heart failure can occur.

Aching, swelling, redness, and limited movement, especially in the large joints of the body can occur in the third stage. This may occur weeks or years after the initial infection. An inflammation of the brain and nerves can also be present during this stage. IV antibiotics are recommended for a more prolonged period of time.

To help you or your family members to avoid tick bites, share these simple but important tips: Avoid wooded or grassy areas from May through November—especially in the northern states. Walk only on cleared paths. When going into a high-risk area, wear pants tucked into socks, closed shoes or boots, long sleeves, and a hat. Light-colored clothing will help you spot ticks easily. Use tick repellents containing N, N-diethyltoluamide (DEET), but use caution with children, and don't apply products containing more than 10% DEET directly to a child's skin. Use tick collars or sprays on your pets that go outdoors and inspect them regularly for ticks. After being in high-risk areas, remove, wash and dry your clothing and inspect your body thoroughly for ticks. The deer tick is black and the size of a sesame seed, the Black-legged tick is poppy-seed size.

Remember, if the head of the tick is imbedded in your skin, grasp it gently but firmly with blunt tweezers near its head and tug gently (being careful not to crush it) until it lets go. Swab the area with antiseptic afterwards to prevent local inflammation.

If you feel that you might have been infected with Lyme disease, see your physician. Tell him your symptoms and ask his advise. A simple blood test can readily identify the problem - causing organism. Until next time...stay informed and stay healthy.

Mistakes are part of the forecasting game

By Mike Lyons

The local weather forecaster was in trouble. He never seemed to get the forecast right. When he predicted sun-it rained. And, when he thought rain was in tomorrow's forecast the sun would shine brightly.

Finally, he wrote to the headquarters of the television network to ask for a transfer to another location. The main office wanted to know the reason for the request.

"Because," the unhappy weatherman replied, "the weather here just doesn't agree with me."

I love that story. I saw it in the August issue of the Rotarian magazine. It points out a fundamental problem with forecasting the weather—the possibility that the forecast could be wrong.

Like every weather prognosticator, I've had my good days and I've had my bad days. Most of the time everything works out just the way I expect it to, but occasionally I find myself scratching my head trying to figure out what went wrong.

Thankfully, most of my viewers are forgiving people. They realize that meteorology is an inexact science and that mistakes are part of the game. Lucky for me I don't forecast the weather in Peru.

Lucky for me but not for Francisco Arias Olivera. Francisco was a popular weather forecaster in Sicuani, Peru—a community of 21,000 people near the Vilcanota River. Back in April of this year, Francisco saw a big storm heading toward Sicuani. "The weatherman told us to expect two inches of rain in 24 hours," said police officer Adolfo Alcalá. "Instead, we got 19 inches in 12 hours."

The unexpected downpour caused the Vilcanota River to surge from its banks, washing away 250 homes and drowning 17 defenseless men, women and children. "Everyone had trusted Francisco," said officer Alcalá. "When the flood came the town's people thought he had let them down."

So, just hours after the disaster struck, a mob of cursing, club-toting townspeople dragged a wild-eyed Francisco to a tree behind the television station with every intention of lynching him.

Thankfully, Alcalá and other policemen came just in time to save Francisco. Needless to say, however, his career as the weather forecaster in Sicuani was over. He quickly packed his bags and left town.

"Six of the vigilantes were charged with murder," said Alcalá. "We were forced to release them, though, because everyone here thinks Francisco got just what he deserved."

In defense of Francisco, I don't think anyone could have predicted 19 inches of rain in 12 hours. He did see the storm coming and he did forecast heavy rain but no weather forecaster could ever predict that much rain in such a short time.

Still, the people of Sicuani remain unconvinced. "It was his job to warn us that a flood was coming," said one resident. "But, he failed to do his job."

"Many of us lost our homes, our loved ones, everything we had," said another resident. "So, it was only fair that he pay with his life."

Officer Alcalá says everything is slowly getting back to normal in the town of Sicuani. Except there is one problem. "We're having a heck of a time finding anyone to be our new weatherman," he said.

Mike Lyons is the weatherman for WPBF, Channel 25.

Belle Glade officer and his dog receive certification

Belle Glade K-9 Officer John Owens and his dog, Boby, recently returned from K-9 Certification Competition in Tallahassee. They received their K-9 certification during events held August 7-9.

Officer Owens and Officer Howell of the Quincy Police

Department teamed up in the two main interdepartmental competition and came in second place.

In the apprehension portion of the certification, Boby and his handler scored 320 out of a possible 340 points. The 23-month-old German Shepherd

An honor guard of seven Metro-Dade police officers fired three volleys to salute the dead. A flyover by helicopters from different state and local police agencies marked the end of the funeral service.

"I'm calling about the injustice Dr. Grear is doing to thousands of Raider fans who support the school by putting only 3,800 seats when we should have the best high school football stadium in the state of Florida."

The fans have to go to something that you all have put together. Dr. Grear should appreciate the fan support Glades Central gets. We're number one in the state for fan support. What happened to the Pepsi donation she turned down? We deserve better fans of Glades Central. We should have a stadium that seats at least 8,000 fans. We average 5,000 fans alone per game.

A low-calorie diet is the key to cancer prevention, researchers say

Ever since weight-loss "dieting" became popular in the 1960s, cutting calories has been the key to shedding unwanted pounds. But when studies during the 1980s found that saturated fat in Americans' diets was one of the main causes of heart disease as well as weight gain, fat became the new villain in our food. Since then, hundreds of reduced fat food products have gone on the market, and millions of Americans have seen them as the answer to eating for better health. Yet statistics show that obesity in this country is increasing, with one-third of all Americans—about 67 million people—at least 20 percent overweight.

Research scientists at a recent symposium of the American Institute for Cancer Research stated that the importance of calories in controlling weight and reducing cancer risk has been forgotten—a trend that is endangering our health as much as high-fat eating. According to cancer researcher David Kritchevsky, Ph.D., of the Wistar Institute in Philadelphia, "In the United States, cholesterol counts seem to have fallen, while the incidence of obesity has gone up. This may be because we have done such a good job of selling the idea that fat and calories are the same thing, that the public will eat a box of fat-free cookies thinking that there's no fat, so it's okay. The problem is the other ingredients used in those cookies might give them the same number of calories as if fat had been used."

Calories and the rate at which we burn them through exercise have been found to play a vital role in our risk for colon, prostate, and breast cancer development, according to several studies conducted with both women and men in the past decade. "We now have data on well over a million people that show that the more overweight you are, the higher the number of cancers for which you become at risk," Kritchevsky noted. "If you are a male the risk of prostate cancer is increased if you're 10 percent overweight, and if you're 30 or 40 percent overweight, you're at greater risk for colon cancer."

Researchers believe from this and other evidence that restricting the number of calories we eat as well as burning them off through regular exercise is at least as important as cutting back on fat. Kritchevsky cited one experiment with skin cancer where mice got more tumors from a diet that was high only in calories and not in fat, than from another diet that was high in fat. He added that in studies where rats were given treadmill exercise, their incidence of tumors was as much as 25 percent lower than among rats that did not exercise.

Kritchevsky said that it's easier to reduce calories by not taking them in rather than trying to work them off. "We eat too much. For example, the portions we now get at restaurants are huge. Populations that eat too much have high rates of cancer. Finnish lumberjacks are known to eat about 7,000 calories a day, but since they're chopping wood at 40 below zero degrees, they're also burning 7,000 calories a day. Most of us are always trying to make life less strenuous, like driving everywhere instead of walking, taking elevators instead of the stairs, so we don't burn the same amount of calories we eat."

AICR researcher T. Colin Campbell, Ph.D., chairman of Professor of Nutritional Biochemistry, Cornell University and director of the Cornell-Oxford-China Diet and Health Project, added, "In China, calorie consumption is about 30 percent higher than it is here, but those calories come from a diet that is much higher in plant foods, especially vegetables. The Chinese are much thinner than Americans not only because of their diet, but because they exercise more than we do."

The American Institute for Cancer Research advises eating a diet that is rich in low-calorie, low-fat, and high-fiber vegetables, fruits, and whole grains. The Institute also recommends eating meat in moderation (no more than 4 ounces per meal); and drinking alcohol in moderation, if at all.

Be sure your child gets a healthy start to the new school year

By Bill Nelson

State Treasurer and Insurance Commissioner

In the rush to prepare children for the new school year, there's a critical item that should not be forgotten. As school supplies are purchased, bus routes are learned, and new friends are made, this is also a good time to help ensure that your child is prepared for a healthy year and a healthy life.

Imagine if you sent your children to school only on the days they had tests. How would they perform? Without the necessary preparation and study, chances are your child will not succeed in her or his potential. Similarly, if your child does not receive preventive health care, immunizations, and regular medical attention, he or she could face illness or preventative vision and hearing deficiencies that, at the very least, make life less fun and, at worst, result in long-term health problems.

Having access to preventive health care is important to your child's development. When children receive the necessary immunizations, early screening to find and correct vision or hearing problems, and monitoring of common childhood health, they get an important boost in their readiness for school. With consistent care by a physician, illnesses can be caught earlier and, sometimes, a hospital stay can be avoided.

As Floridians, insured families are fortunate to be protected by the state's Child Health Assurance Act. This law requires health insurance policies to cover regular doctor visits for children from birth to age 16 without requiring policyholders to pay a deductible. Pediatricians, family practitioners, and other primary care physicians in Florida are familiar with the services, and are ready to provide them and discuss your child's health and well-being with you.

Under the Child Health Assurance Act, families with health insurance covering doctor visits are entitled to the following services: documentation of child's health history; physical examinations; assessment of child's development; guidance on how to protect child's health; appropriate immunizations; and any necessary laboratory test.

While the Child Health Assurance Act helps insured families, we often hear from families who are having difficulty obtaining coverage – due to the price of premiums, employers not offering dependent coverage, or pre-existing conditions that make it difficult to obtain coverage. There are other programs available to help these families obtain coverage for their children.

The Healthy Kids program, for example, is being expanded to provide low-cost comprehensive health coverage to uninsured school children in sixteen Florida counties. As chairman of state-supported Florida Healthy Kids Corporation, I won't rest until this model program is available in all 67 counties.

For more information about the Child Health Assurance Act, the Healthy Kids program, or any other insurance issue, the Department of Insurance is prepared to help. This state hotline can be reached at 1-800-342-2762. Healthy Kids also has its own hotline at 1-800/FLA-KIDS.

Game & Fresh Water Fish Commission news release

Three men charged with illegal sale of Alligators and eggs

Three men were arrested Saturday, Aug. 3 in Vero Beach after allegedly selling alligators and alligator eggs to an undercover investigator with the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission (GFC).

The defendants are: James Terral Walker, 34, of 10085 90th St., Vero Beach; Homer Ray Morrison, 31, of 13100 99th St., Fellsmere; and Blaine Cressman from Sumter County.

Capt. Steve Blissett, GFC Regional Investigations Supervisor based in West Palm Beach, said the arrests were made by a team of investigators and officers from the Central and Everglades Regions.

Morrison and Walker were each charged with illegal possession of live alligators and eggs. Blissett said the two men were booked at the Indian River County jail. Cressman was transported to Sumter County where related charges are pending.

Illegal possession of live alligators is a third-degree felony which carries a penalty of up to five years in jail and/or a $5,000 fine. The Vero Beach defendants were also charged with illegal sale of alligators and alligator eggs. This is a first-degree misdemeanor punishable by up to one-year in jail and/or a $1,000 fine. The two were also charged with illegal possession of marijuana, a misdemeanor.

Blissett said the GFC seized 57 live alligators ranging from eight-inches to three feet. He said the alligators were released in the Ft. Drum Swamp located 20 miles west of Vero Beach. The eggs were retained for study to ascertain if they were still viable. The defendants, Blissett said, allegedly accepted $1,000 for the alligators and eggs. He said the price was fixed at $5 an egg, $15 per alligator hatching, and $10 a foot for the large alligators.

Fishing with Walt Reynolds

wonder why you were out on the lake.

There is still an early morning bite going in the heavy grass areas on Kramer Island, Rita Island, and the East Wall. You can catch these fish by using a plastic worm or a spinner bait. I use the Hurricane III spinner bait because it goes through the grass very well and, with three blades flashing, it looks like a school of bait fish. There are also some fish in the open water areas that can be caught on a plastic worm or crankbait.

Chef Douthit and I took our parties on Monday to the Okeetee area and caught several quality fish by flipping 10" worms and crawdads in the reeds.

Chef had a nine pounder and we had several other big fish bite, but they got the best of us.

Be sure to keep an eye on the sky for the afternoon thunderstorms. They can grow rather mean quickly this time of year. Also don't forget to drink plenty of water to avoid heat exhaustion.

To all a good bite,

PHYSICIAN SPOTLIGHT

in today's changing health care environment.

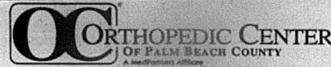

"We offer a wide range of medical services," notes Dr. Harland, "and we believe that by practicing preventive medicine we can help our patients stay healthier and, hopefully, keep overall health care costs from rising."

In addition to preventive care and immunizations, the group offers full physical examinations; sports physicals, pediatric and geriatric care, EKG, minor surgery, flu shots, weight loss programs, physical therapy, minor surgery, allergy testing and injections, inhalation treatments, colposcopy, audiometry, spirometry, tympanometry, and the treatment of acne.

"Our training in Family Medicine enables us to evaluate our patients' problems and to treat those conditions that do not require specialty care. When a patient requires a specialist, we will refer our patients to the finest specialists available in the area," says Dr. Harland.
